

Human Migration Within and Into the United States

In this lesson from the National Geographic Society's Web site students learn about migration patterns both within and into the United States. Maps are used to illustrate which regions people are moving into and which regions people are moving out of. The Web site also has links to the United States Census Bureau, Population Bureau, and Cities Population Database for further research.

<http://www.nationalgeographic.com/xpeditions/lessons/09/g912/migration.html>