

GIS

the power of information

As fires ravaged the forests of the western United States, the USFS communicated timely and dynamic information about the fires and their suppression operations to users of the world-wide web.

GIS Day 2008

November 19

This photo was taken in the Bitterroot National Forest in Montana on August 6, 2000 by John McColgan, a fire behavior analyst from Fairbanks, Alaska. We would like to thank all of those who worked so hard to protect our national treasures, and especially John for capturing this vivid image of your work on behalf of us all.